

sexiest woman in the world?

DECIDE

■ SIZZLERS: Danish beauty Malene is the archetypal blonde while pouting Angelina Jolie might appeal more to teens who prefer brunettes

■ NOW here's a HOT topic to keep you all talking down the local lads!

Just WHO do you reckon is the sexiest woman in the world?

■ And, no, this isn't just a matter of idle gossip. It's important research.

So you're going to have to put in some SERIOUS study.

■ We at the Daily Star Sunday need to know the identity of the most beautiful babe on the planet.

We can't think of anyone better to ask than our army of loyal readers. So get thinkin', will ya! The lucky lady might be a famous name like some of the gorgeous girls here...singer Cheryl Cole, for example, or ex-Big Breakfast babe Kelly Brook.

■ Could Hollywood honey Angelina Jolie be your pride and joy? Or our very own pin-up discovery Malene Espensen?

It could be a celeb. Or it could be your very own wife or girlfriend. (In fact, to play safe, you'd better say that at home.)

■ Brunette, blonde, redhead? Ample curves or effin sexy lips or a beaming smile? It's up to YOU to tell US.

AND there's a great prize for one reader in the vote.

VOTE FOR YOUR NO.1... & WIN A HOUSEPARTY 24/7

■ HERE'S how you can cast your vote for the world's sexiest woman – and bag yourself a nice piece of kit.

■ Text DSSEXY followed by a space, then your vote for the world's sexiest woman, to 82100. Don't forget to include your name and address details. Texts cost 25p plus your normal mobile operator cost.

■ Or log on to www.dailystar.co.uk/sexiestwoman and vote online. Voting closes at noon on Thursday, November 23.

■ We'll pick one entry out of the hat to win a HouseParty 24/7, GEAR4's home stereo speaker system for iPod with AM/FM radio and alarm clock. It retails for £99.99 and is on sale from www.gear4.com or Currys. Normal rules apply and the editor's decision is final.

Whatever business you are in. It's a simple process and even if you are outside of the three months we'll do everything we can to help you sort your situation out. Just call to register and receive our free guide to working for yourself.

BB's Strokes of genius

BIG Brother chiefs are after stars from the 1980s for their celeb series in January.

Gary, now 38, shot to fame as Arnold Jackson in the hit US sitcom – with the catchphrase "Watchoo talkin' 'bout, Willis?"

Now he's set for a small-screen comeback to delight his British fans.

Joining him is Carol Lee Scott, 64, who played green witch Grotbags in Rod Hull and Emu's All Live Pink Windmill Show. Last night a CBB insider said: "These two are heroes to millions – they will be brilliant in the house."

Top executives at show makers Endemol are also upping their political content following the success of contestant George Galloway last year. They have already signed up Conservative MP Boris Johnson, 42, and now want to get former Labour front bench Clare Short, 60, on board.

Exciting

A show source said: "Half the names have now been signed up and the 'most wanted' list is very exciting."

"It will be fascinating if they can get everyone they want. It would be a ratings smash."

David Hasselhoff has finally decided to go on Celeb Big Brother.

This is after a tug-of-war battle with I'm A Celeb bosses that only ended when Channel 4 upped their offer.

And the show could also have three blonde babes – actress Jennifer Ellison, 23, TV host Michaela Strachan, 40, and ex-pin up Jo Guest, 34.

Other names thought to be in the frame are Lee Latchford Evans, 31, from Steps and former Boyzone star Stephen Gately, 30.

OUTBURST: Ramsay

Gord's a real Spain

FIERY Gordon Ramsay serves up his biggest-ever roast when he dubs a restaurant "the biggest sh*thole in Spain".

The chef travels to La Parra de Burriana on the Costa del Sol in Ramsay's Kitchen Nightmares.

He meets Laurence Davey, 26, who borrowed £40,000 to take on the business but owes £75,000.

After tasting some of his dodgy dishes, he blasts: "This is fking critical. It's the biggest sh*thole in Spain."

But things improve after Ramsay, 40, persuades him to stick to a smaller menu.

Ramsay's Kitchen Nightmares is on Channel 4 at 9pm on Tuesday.

Jenny like a cat out of hell

FORMER Atomic Kitten Jenny Frost has admitted she's addicted to speed – and has vowed to go "hell for leather" at Silverstone in the final of Sky One's The Race.

The sexy Scouser, 28, told the Daily Star Sunday: "I have lived in London for eight years and most of my family and friends still live up north so I spend a lot of time on the M1 and the M6 in my BMW."

"I do like to put my foot down and I like to scare myself by going fast."

"The Race seemed like a cool show to do. And I like doing daft things so I thought I could do lots in one go here, like driving monster trucks and hovercraft."

Pretty singer Jenny will be joined on the girls' final team by R&B star Ms Dynamite, 25, F1 supremo Bernie Ecclestone's daughter Tamara, 22, and actress Melissa Joan Hart, 30.

They'll be coached by Formula One racing star David Coulthard.

Meanwhile, the boys' team – made up of former boxer Nigel Benn, 42, footballer Les Ferdinand, 39, rock singer Brian Johnson, 59, and actor and singer Gary Numan, 48 – have former F1 star Eddie Irvine as their captain.

The final will be shown live on Sky One tonight at 10pm.

GAZZA'S NO RACIST Babe defends star

BALL ACHE: Gazza was arrested in a fracas outside a club but has been supported by Natalie

SPEAKING UP: Ex-lover Natalie says Gazza never used racist abuse

SEXY Natalie Springer has hit back at claims that Paul Gascoigne is a racist saying: "Do you think he would have bedded me if he was?"

The football idol was in trouble again last week when he was arrested amid allegations he racially abused a photographer and attacked another.

But beauty therapist Natalie, who enjoyed a sizzling year-long romance with Gazza, has jumped to his defence.

She told a pal the 39-year-old former Newcastle and Tottenham ace would "never, ever use racist abuse".

Natalie, 25, said: "I can't believe what's being said about Paul. He's no racist - I can assure you of that. Do you think he'd go out with me if he was?"

The pair began dating after Gazza met Natalie at London's Park Lane Hotel where she worked. He asked her out after she gave him a back massage.

A pal of the babe said: "Paul wined and dined Natalie every time he came down to London."

"They were an item and he was totally smitten. It was a long-distance relationship as he lived in Newcastle but he called and texted her all the time."

"He said he loved her several times by text. He treated her like a lady and she met his friends. But he changed around her when she told him she was going to have a boob job and wanted to get into glamour modelling.

by REBECCA VARLEY

"I think he thought she was going to change and become a hardened kiss-and-tell girl."

Only close pals were aware of the hush-hush romance and one reckons the split from Londoner Natalie, of Knightsbridge, in January this year is the real reason Gazza is getting himself into trouble again.

And Gazza is said to desperately want the 34DD beauty back.

Drink

The friend said: "Paul is still head over heels in love with Natalie. She broke his heart and he wants her back."

"And with looks like she's got it's not difficult to see why."

But the troubled star will have another fight on his hands if he wants to win Natalie back as she's now dating celebrity hairdresser Lee Stafford.

Gazza, who has been battling drink problems for years, was arrested in the early hours of Wednesday after a run-in outside a club in South Kensington.

After being released from police cells, he made a series of bizarre confessions, including how he wants to live with Mickey Mouse in Disneyland.

Robot hunts £2bn booty

A SALVAGE firm is ready to use a robot to win the race for the treasure of a sunken British warship.

The HMS Sussex sank in a storm in the Mediterranean in 1694 carrying ten tonnes of gold coins and 100 silver ingots worth £1million then - about £2.1billion today.

US salvage firm Odyssey Marine Exploration has been locked in a row with Britain and Spain, which says the ship is in their waters. But the company claims to have struck a deal with the UK government to share the booty.

It will use a 6.3 tonne submersible robot with a mechanical arm to scoop up the treasure and says it will dive before Christmas.

JANA'S PUT TO DOVE TEST AND TURNS

Here's a beauty we made earlier...

BEFORE

THE RAW MATERIAL: Jana is a naturally pretty girl with a trim figure and had no reason to feel embarrassed in her bikini. But even she was astonished at her transformation

FACE

JANA'S teeth have been whitened and her lips made a darker shade of red and plumped up. Her eyes have also been whitened and made larger and more prominent while her cheek bones have been completely remodelled and her chin made sharper to give her a "better" face. Finally, her hair has been volumised and given lots of added shine.

TO give Jana a fuller and sexier figure in her slinky bikini, she was given a technological boob job to boost her bra size by at least three cups. Using clever shading and shadowing she is now much more voluptuous.

JANA'S new bigger boobs are highlighted by her newly nipped-in waist. It has had centimetres removed from the hips to the line of her bikini top. Her neck has also been subtly lengthened to make her appear more in proportion and highlight her shoulders and bust.

JANA'S natural skin was deemed too cold and "blue" so she was given an all-over bronzing to warm her up and add a healthy glow. The tone was also evened out to make it appear smoother and to disguise any marks including freckles, scars and bruises - plus the natural creases above her knees.

TO add height, Jana's legs have been dramatically stretched to make her appear taller and more in proportion. Her thighs have also been trimmed by computer and inches carved from her calves and ankles. She is also wearing heels which help to lengthen her silhouette.

arrival, Jana's work was done - but our photo-shoot was far from complete.

Next the Daily Star Sunday's computer wizard set to work and took TWICE as long as the photoshoot to make her truly picture perfect.

The techno pro responsible for the transformation revealed: "The shoot took two hours with hair and make-up being applied at the same time.

Pretty

"My job - to make Jana into supermodel material - took double that.

"I sat at the computer and took four hours changing everything to make it work.

"Jana is a naturally pretty girl so she should not take these changes personally. Even snaps of top models undergo the same lengthy process before they get the green light."

Speaking of her transformation, Jana squealed: "It looks like my perfect twin sister!

"It's definitely made me less inclined to feel the pressure of looking glam all the time now I know how people like Kate Moss achieve it."

RE-STYLE: Jana's hair gets added volume

by EMMA SHANKLAND

IT sounds like the answer to every plain Jane's dream.

The latest advert from Dove soap exposes the secrets of make-up and techno wizardry that can apparently turn any ugly duckling into a swan.

The mini movie has attracted more than a million hits in a single week on the YouTube website and even more e-mails from gobs-macked girls.

But is it for real?

To find out your fun-loving Daily Star Sunday subjected student Jana Kouriantchikovas to the ultimate, miraculous makeover.

Our task - to turn her into the ultimate girl next-PHWOAR!

Bikini

The brave 21-year-old blonde agreed to bare all after seeing the latest ad from Dove for herself.

Londoner Jana said: "I wasn't really that comfortable hanging around in my bikini when I got to the studio.

"I'm an average looking girl. The only thing that's striking about me is my hair - because it's naturally really light blonde.

"So I gritted my teeth through the 'before' shots, wishing that only the end results were going to be printed. I suppose that's the beauty of being a professional model - you know the rosey ones will just go straight in the bin.

"I then sat down for two full hours so the experts could do their massive makeover.

"They started by sorting out my skin with what seemed like a million and one tints of foundation, concealer, cover and highlighters.

"The number of products ran into over a dozen I'm sure. Then there were four tones of shadow put on my eyes, then the eye liner and lashings of mascara on my pre-curved eye lashes.

"Lipstick and gloss went on as my hair was rolled, quiffed and bouffed beyond all recognition. It felt ridiculously huge but my now-flawless complexion made up for the shock.

"Then my whole body was covered in a tinted shimmer and I was ready for the cameras again."

BAKRI CASH GLOAT

EXILED hate preacher Omar Bakri Mohammed claims he's more powerful than ever in the UK.

And he says his vile anti-Western rants are now being funded by British followers.

Sponger Bakri, 48, gloats they send cash to fund his layabout lifestyle in Beirut.

Bakri, whose wife and kids get £300 a week benefits here, said: "You could say I'm still state funded - by my students."

send me money - they finance me from Britain."

And Bakri, who fled to evade British justice, boasted of his regular internet lectures for devotees.

He warned: "I am still influencing Muslims in the UK, more than ever."

Radical

"I am still living among the Muslims in Britain."

Bakri ran radical group al-Muhajiroun from Tottenham, north London, until it was disbanded in 2004. He lived off handouts throughout his 20 years in the UK.

The self-styled "sheikh" taunted: "My supporters say, 'Do not dare to look for a job. It is an Islamic principle to look after your scholar.'"

WAR AND PEACE: A leisurely visit to Naples could put tourists in the line of stray bullets

BRIT tourists have been warned they could be caught up in a bloody Mafia war that has claimed 14 lives in the last two weeks.

A total of 76 people have been murdered this year and bystanders have been injured by stray bullets.

The Italian government is now considering putting its army on the streets.

And they have warned Brits, who flock to the city and neighbouring resorts such as Sorrento, that they must "watch out".

KILLED: Godfather

The battle to control drugs, prostitution and protection rackets intensified after the killing in February of one gang boss, Giovanni Magrelli.

Then, in August, the government released 1,700 convicts from jails in the area in a bid to free up prison places.

MP Antonio Di Pietro said: "The prisoner amnesty has created a sense of impunity among those involved in organised crime in Naples.

More than 1,000 crimes have been carried out by those released, including several murders. The ironic thing is the amnesty hasn't even resolved the prison overcrowding problems.

"These people are being rearrested and put back in jail where they came from."

Giovanni Magrelli
burned-out. A woman sports shop owner was also among this year's fatal victims.

A police source said: "The clans are getting more and more violent."

"In the past, they wouldn't have dreamed of shooting a woman but now that is becoming a common occurrence.

"They are also becoming more brazen and are carrying out hits in broad daylight when they're high on cocaine."

MY SUPER SEX LIFE

STUNNING Nikki Sanderson is getting 'em off for the first time on TV - to play a babe who can't have sex.

The former Corrie star steps naked into the spotlight in the launch episode of hot new drama Strictly Confidential.

Nikki, 22, admits she was nervous about baring all.

But she's proud she's helping to highlight women's sexual problems...and more grateful than ever that she's never had trouble in the bedroom herself.

Speaking exclusively to the Daily Star Sunday about her role as a sex therapist's

But it's tough on screen, says Nikki

by SUSAN HILL

patient, she said: "I have been so lucky. There are horrible and embarrassing things that can happen - which I now know all about thanks to the part."

"Thankfully, nothing like that has ever happened to me. I don't know what I'd do if it did. Things have always been pretty normal for me in that department!"

Nikki plays a newly-wed called Tiffany who consults a bisexual therapist (ex-Corrie sidekick Suranne Jones) because she has a problem called vaginismus, which makes her "seize up" during sex. She told us: "Of course, I was nervous about stripping off - I don't even go topless on holiday."

Lovely

"I always said I wouldn't strip unless it was absolutely necessary. I'd never want to be known as the girl who gets her boobs out."

"But it was important to show Tiffany and her husband trying to have sex. I felt the scenes were necessary so I had no problem doing them."

"I had the full support of my family and boyfriend. And, because it was my first time, the cast and crew were all so lovely."

"I wouldn't say I'm particularly proud of my boobs, I'm no Pamela Anderson. But I don't mind them."

Nikki is dating Danny Young, who plays Warren Baldwin in the Street but has no plans to get serious yet. She said: "I just live one day to the next."

Strictly Confidential starts on ITV1 at 9pm on Thursday.

ROUND the world adventurer Karl Bushby, above, has split with the fiancée he met during his trek.

Karl, 37, from Hull, fell in love with Catalina Estrada, 33, as he hiked across Colombia.

But having to leave her behind has led to the split.

Karl's global walk will restart in January in Russia where he was arrested earlier this year for entering the country illegally.

REUNION: Nikki and Suranne team up again. Inset, Nikki's boyfriend Danny

GRIPPING!

Arm wrestler babes muscle in

THE world of arm wrestling has been gripped by an army of stunning eastern European babes.

Thousands of sexy girls from the Ukraine, Uzbekistan, Kazakhstan and Russia are trying their hands - and arms - at the male-dominated sport. With the chance to travel and earn up to £400,000 a year, arm wrestling has seen a huge influx of glamour.

Girls like Ukrainian Skoryk Olena, 22, who said: "I began arm wrestling six years ago and I really love it. It's hard work but good fun too. There are lots of girls who compete regularly and it is like one big family."

Tough

But although many of the girls may look like models they're just as mean as the men when it comes to flexing their forearms and flattening opponents.

Stunning Shishkova Ekaterina, 18, from Uzbekistan, said: "It's down to my dad that I do it - he's our national coach."

"It is tough but I love it and there are many, many girls taking part now."

Sadly for Shishkova and her many male admirers she was knocked out of the 60kg (132lb) class in the early stages of last weekend's World Amateur Arm

by JONATHAN CORKE

Wrestling Championships at the Trafford Centre in Manchester.

Ukrainian Viktoriya Iliushyna, who beat her, said: "It is a tough sport but there is money to be made and we travel the world."

Former world champion Neil Pickup, 33, said interest in the sport has never been so great.

His sister Elaine, 34, is also a former world champion and he says there are now more women than ever taking part.

He said: "There are vast numbers of very, very pretty, conditioned ladies taking part."

Arm wrestlers like Blackburn-born Neil and the man many consider to be the best of all-time, American John Brzenk, 43, can earn up to £400,000 a year.

And, while the sport is being dominated by eastern Europeans in both the male and female categories, Scandinavian babes are also beginning to swell the ranks.

Norwegian Sandra Rodland, 20, said: "I love it. My friends think it's cool and most guys are a little bit scared of me, which is good!"

The contests in Manchester attracted big crowds and 1,400 competitors - a third of whom were female.

TAKE That star MARK OWEN is back in fashion, it seems. The former Celebrity Big Brother winner has been offered his own TV show, solo recording contract and a string of stage roles after his band hit the big time again. A source said: "Getting the band back together has been brilliant for them all but for Mark in particular. Everyone wants a piece of him."

CHRISTINA AGUILERA has been having top secret sittings for a new waxwork at London's Madame Tussauds. But before agreeing to take part she joked to waxworks bosses: "Keep my waxwork as far as possible away from Paris Hilton's!"

FORMER Friends star MATT LE BLANC has signed up for a US version of Name That Tune. He's teaming up with pal DONNY OSMOND for the show that he will be hosting - starting early in 2007. A source said: "He flopped in his own sitcom but now he wants a go at presenting."

EWAN MCGREGOR and WILL YOUNG are battling it out to take the lead role in a London West End version of The Count Of Monte Cristo. Theatre bosses were discussing moves for the stars in London's posh Hampshire Hotel last week.

LISA SCOTT LEE is planning a crack at Eurovision next year. She told me: "I like it and think it's a great show. My brother had a go at it a few years ago. I don't care what we do as long as we have a good song."

RONAN KEATING could be the next high-profile star to be on the look-out for a record deal. The singer's latest album hasn't done as well as expected so with pop industry budgets slashed could the Irish hunk be deemed expendable? A Boyzone reunion, anyone?

McFLY are ready to crack the USA. The funky foursome are currently being courted by a major US label. Tom Fletcher from the band told me: "We did have a shot last year but it didn't quite work. This time though we are going to do it. Good luck, boys!"

MOIST WANTED...? I SHOULD COCOA!

PRISON bosses have banned a posh moisturiser - because lags were using the tubs to hide contraband.

Sales of Palmer's Cocoa Butter Formula moisturiser soared in jails. Governors thought inmates were shelling out to protect their skin.

But a warden found they were prising open the lids and hiding banned items in a tiny space.

Staff at category C Erlestoke jail in Wiltshire found two mobile Sim cards and alerted the Prison Service.

It banned Palmer's tubs from all prisons and jail shops. But angry

by ANDY GARDNER

inmates have demanded that the moisturiser be put back on sale.

A jail insider said: "The Prison Service ordered stocks of Palmer's to be removed but inmates who genuinely need the cream are furious."

Stretch

"It seems dry conditions in jails are harmful to the skin and it is essential to have a moisturiser."

Tubs of the product cost £4 for 100g to £6 for 200g.

Palmer's even recommend it to prevent stretch marks after pregnancy.

CAT'S GEORGE LOONY

CAT Deeley has pinched the cream of Hollywood heart-throbs.

by ANDY LEA

George Clooney is so dotty about her that he's asked her to walk up the aisle with him...

...at Tom Cruise's wedding. And Cat would love to go. But she might have to kiss off the world's hottest date this time.

She's in so much demand in America that her schedule's full to bustin'.

A US source said: "Cat was amazed to find where the first date will be, if she can make it."

"But she has so many commitments already that she's had to explain it might not be possible."

Clooney, 45, Tinseltown's most eligible bachelor, wooed 30-year-old Brummie babe Cat after meeting her on a US telly show. She seemed like the perfect partner to go with him to Italy this Saturday to see Cruise and Katie Holmes tie the knot.

The insider revealed: "George was immediately struck by Cat."

"He flirted outrageously with her and she flirted back. Afterwards he asked her for her number saying he'd like to take her for dinner."

Busy

"Then she was told that would be at the Cruise wedding!"

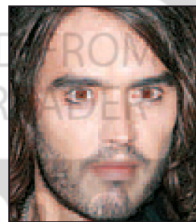

"She'd love to go. But she's so busy launching her career here."

Cat hosts US reality show So You Think You Can Dance and has landed a job on Good Morning America.

The source added: "If she hooks up with Clooney she's guaranteed to rocket into the A-list."

My heartbreak as parents tear family apart

SYMPATHISER: Brand
Hanging makes me Sadd

RUSSELL Brand is risking a desert storm by saying that evil Saddam Hussein should be spared hanging. The comic, 31, is already in hot water for saying "I like al-Qaida" during one broadcast.

Brand last week landed a late-night show on Radio 2 after his BBC 6 Music prog proved a surprise hit.

Now in comments that are likely to upset more listeners, Brand has said of Iraqi dictator Saddam: "When he came out of that hole with the beard I thought 'Oh let him off'."

"The poor fella is being put to death now."

"I know he did a lot of wrong but he looked like Father Christmas."

DEVOTED:
 Johnny and Christine in happier times

by SUSAN HILL

CORRIE legend Johnny Briggs' daughter has begged him to re-think his fling with a girl 42 years his junior.

The 71-year-old is romancing make-up artist Lisa Charnley, 29.

But daughter Stephanie revealed she was left heartbroken last week after her mum went public about her marriage split with Johnny in a downmarket paper.

Christine Briggs, 57, claimed life was "hell" with the star - who played Mike Baldwin for 31 years until his screen death in April.

In an exclusive interview with the Daily Star Sunday Stephanie, 24, a budding actress, said: "I haven't met my father's new girlfriend."

"It upset me as I found out he was seeing her from my housemate."

Fortune

"It came as quite a shock as she's only a year older than my sister Jennie. I was dubious as to what her motives were and had to speak to my dad about it."

"I asked him how many 29-year-olds date a 71-year-old unless they are seeking fame and fortune?"

"It's been really hard. My mum had managed to maintain a dignified silence for all these years and I just wish she had kept it that way."

"I guess it was her way of getting back at him."

The couple wed in May 1977 and have four children - Stephanie, Jennie, 28, Michael, 25, and Anthony 17.

But Christine claimed Johnny cheated on her while she raised their kids.

She branded him boring in bed and also claimed that he was mean with his money.

Stephanie added: "My parents are both wonderful people and I love them dearly. But I just have to accept their relationship is over."

"It will be a difficult Christmas for us all."

GAMEON

YOUR NO.1 GUIDE TO ALL THE LATEST GAMES

BY PAUL VALE

GI LOVE IT

Battlefield drama shot hot

FROM recent releases like Medal Of Honour, to old-school classics like Battlefield 1942, World War II has offered gaming a rich source of content.

Just why this conflict has inspired so many hits is up for debate.

The fact it was fought on land, sea and air, in theatres stretching from the Pacific to Europe to North Africa, ensures developers can always find a new angle for a title.

This is probably why World War I remains virtually untouched – sitting in a cold trench for four years doesn't lend itself to either shooter or simulation.

And as it ended more than 60 years ago, the WWII is also far enough in the past to lessen any protests of insensitivity towards the gaming industry (although retired colonels in Tunbridge Wells will no doubt write to me in disagreement).

Perhaps years from now, we'll be playing Medal Of Honour: The Hunt For Osama, or Commandos 4: Return To Abu Ghraib.

Until then, it's back to the Forties, which gets another treatment this week with the release of Activision's Call Of Duty 3. Its predecessor, Call Of Duty 2, along with PGR3, was the pick of the 360's launch titles a year ago and little has been released for the console that has come close to the game's stunning visuals and absorbing gameplay.

Although the third version boasts a few new tricks, the main difference is the geography. It now puts you in Normandy at the start of GI's long campaign to liberate France from under the heel of the Nazi jackboot.

One addition is a close-quarters battle mechanic, which allows players to fight hand-to-hand. This is rather simplistically done by alternating the left and right trigger buttons – Daley Thompson-style – building enough power to repel the fiend bent on stabbing you in the eye. In truth, it's rather gimmicky and the game wouldn't suffer if it wasn't there.

Grenades

The sound effects certainly aren't gimmicky. Barely a second passes without your ears being assaulted by grenades, bullets and explosions.

The Wehrmacht also has a habit of asking you to surrender in less than polite German. So if you're not yet hooked to a portly 5.1 speaker system, this game's a good reason to do so.

Fortunately, the developers have resisted the temptation to complicate the gameplay with tactics, ensuring Call Of Duty remains a first-person shooter.

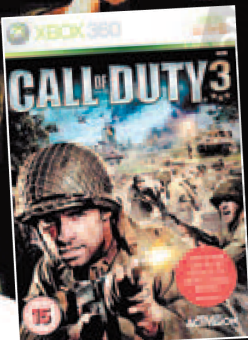

Like the Allies in 1945, it simply cannot be beaten.

NO.1 MUM

...but there's no room for Madge

MADONNA, 48, failed to pull votes after the way she adopted a Malawian child and vowed to bring him up in the mysterious Kabbalah cult.

And Tom Cruise's bride-to-be Katie Holmes, 27, who gave birth to daughter Suri in April, did not figure either.

Viewers said the fact the couple kept the child hidden from the world for so long, plus Tom's public attack on Brooke Shields for using drugs to combat post-natal depression, were massive minus factors.

NO.3 MUM

by MIKE PARKER in Los Angeles

ANGELINA Jolie has been rated the best celebrity mum in the world in a new survey.

But Madonna came nowhere following her Malawi adoption.

More than half of viewers in the American TV poll ranked the Tomb Raider beauty as Supermom for the way she takes her kids everywhere and looks after them herself.

The 31-year-old actress and UN goodwill ambassador, who says she wants even more natural and adopted babies, was praised for her "practical and loving" approach to parenthood.

One fan declared that adopting Maddox, now four, from Cambodia and Zahara, who's just turned two, from Ethiopia, transformed Jolie herself from wild child to caring parent.

She added: "When her own biological baby with Brad Pitt joined the family in May, she showed just what a fantastic mother she really is."

Cage

Another Jolie fan from the poll for cable channel Spike TV said: "She's promised to bring up her kids as global citizens, speaking several languages and travelling everywhere with her."

"They won't be brought up in a gilded Hollywood cage or following mumbo-jumbo religions like Kabbalah or Scientology."

Second came supermodel Heidi Klum, 33, who is expecting her third child with husband Seal next month.

She got votes for springing back into shape after every birth.

Brooke Shields, 41, came third after mums felt sorry for the way she was slammed by Tom Cruise for taking anti-depressants in her fight with post-natal blues.

David Duchovny's wife Tea Leoni, 40, was praised for putting her career on hold to raise their two daughters while Meryl Streep, 57, got votes for moving away from Hollywood to bring up her four kids.

Even lesbian Rosie O'Donnell, 44, squeezed into the top ten for adopting four underprivileged kids as "a proud gay mom".

BOB'S CAR KILLER BID

BOB Hope's grief for his dead daughter reaches a climax when he snaps at the wheel of his car.

Dawn died after one of Tom King's houses collapsed on her.

And, as our shock pictures show, the devoted dad (actor Tony Audenshaw) sees a chance for revenge when he spots property tycoon Tom at the roadside. Luckily his son Jamie (Alex Carter) grabs the steering wheel just as Tom's son Jimmy (Nick Miles) pulls his dad away from the out-of-control car's path.

Raging Bob puts the car in reverse for a second go as terrified Tom (actor Ken Farrington) dials 999.

Viewers of the ITV1 soap can see the drama a week tomorrow.

Jolt puts Jean over the edgeTORMENTED Jean Slater flips when she discovers her bad boy son Sean is alive.

As our exclusive pictures show it's his girlfriend Ruby Allen who reveals the truth - leaving mentally ill Jean more confused than ever.

Babe Ruby, played by Louisa Lytton, decides to visit Jean after her best pal - and Sean's brother - Stacey refuses to drop the bombshell.

Concerned Stacey (Lacey Turner) fears the news could tip her mum over the edge.

But feisty Ruby is so desperate to become a permanent fixture in Sean's life she takes matters into her own hands.

She steals a piece of paper with Jean's address from Stacey and turns up at her house with flowers and a cake.

But as our pictures show, the smiles don't last long when Ruby reveals she's living with Jean's "dead" ex-squaddie son (Rob Kazinsky). Poor Jean (Gillian Wright) completely loses it.

An insider said: "Ruby can't understand why Stacey hasn't told her mum that Sean is alive."

"Ruby wants him to move to Essex with her so she can have him all to herself."

"She's starting to get paranoid - and even Stacey becomes a kind of enemy. She thinks everyone is standing in the way of her relationship with Sean."

"So when Stacey doesn't tell her mum of their engagement she sees it as a snub."

Powerful

"Sadly Stacey was right - her mum is far too fragile to handle the shock."

"And Ruby turning up sends her completely over the edge. The scenes are really powerful as Jean starts to lose it - Ruby is well out of her depth."

Fans of the BBC1 soap can watch the dramatic scenes being played out when Ruby pays Jean a visit a week on Thursday.

IT should be a happy occasion as Danny Baldwin welcomes home his son Warren.

But as the factory boss cracks opens the champagne with footie star Warren (actor Danny Young), his ex-wife Frankie and his son Jamie turn up.

And they plan to reveal that they are in love! As our exclusive picture shows, lovable rogue Danny, played by Bradley Walsh, is oblivious to their secret romance. The lovers (Debra Stephenson and Rupert Hill) get such a warm reception they bottle out of breaking the news.

Football star Warren's return upsets his plot

But viewers will see the pair's secret rumble by Danny in the coming weeks - with dire consequences for everyone involved. A Corrie insider said: "After coming to terms with their love, Frankie and Jamie rush to Danny's to break the news."

"But as they announce they have something to tell him, Danny reveals he has a surprise, too. Footballer Warren is in England discussing a transfer from his Spanish club and he pays his family a visit.

"But his arrival shocks Frankie into convincing Jamie they should wait to tell Danny about their affair until Warren has left.

Special

"The pair put off their confession. But when Danny finally discovers the truth, it really is in the most awful way."

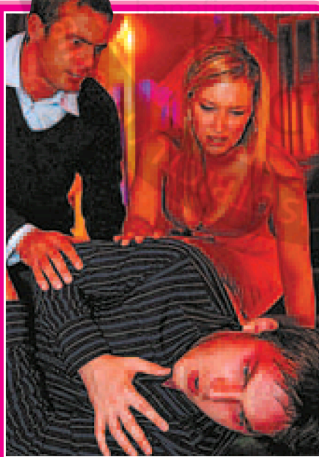

Viewers of the ITV1 soap will catch all the drama of Warren's surprise visit in two special episodes a week tomorrow.

The storyline heralds the departure of Debra and Bradley from the Street early next month.

OUT OF HAND: Amputee Nicu Tudorache and below, Sacha Baron Cohen as Borat with an actress in the Romanian village

Village puts fear of Glod in Borat

by DOMINIK LEMANSKI

ANGRY villagers in Romania are gunning for Borat star Sacha Baron Cohen.

The comedian's new movie was shot in poverty-stricken Glod in southern Romania.

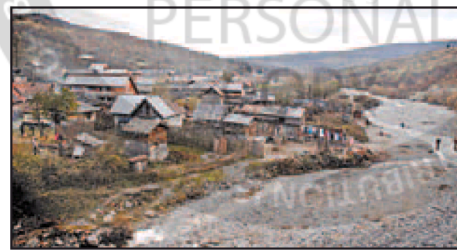

But locals claim they were never told it was a Hollywood movie and say they have been "humiliated" in front of an audience of millions.

Dildo

Glod was used to portray Borat's home town in Kazakhstan and villagers received the equivalent of just £3 for appearing on camera.

They claim the crew demanded they take cows into their homes and let their children be filmed with weapons.

One man, who lost his arm in an accident, claims he was unaware he was wearing a sex

NOT KAZAKHSTAN: Glod was portrayed as Borat's home town toy when the crew attached a dildo to his stump.

Nicu Tudorache, 56, said: "Some one from the council came to me and said these Americans need a man with no arm for some scenes."

"I said yes but I never imagined the whole world will see me ridiculed in the cinemas."

Now villagers plan legal action over the film Cultural Learnings Of America For Make Benefit Glorious Nation Of Kazakhstan.

Gheorghe Luca claims the crew told him to bring a cow into his living room.

"They paid my family £30 for four days. It was very uncomfortable and there was animal manure all over our home," he said. "We endured it because we are poor."

Bogdan Moncea of production company Castel Film said computers and TV sets were donated to the local school.

But the council and villagers denied receiving any goods. Baron Cohen, 35, was unavailable for comment.

THE BATTLE OF THE BABES AS

Undie-nice mistletoe

Picture: WWW.ULTIMO.CO.UK

CELEBRITY bra wars kick off at the check-outs this Christmas – as Sarah Harding, Jordan and Kate Lawler go into battle with new ranges of sexy lingerie. The three celebrity babes will all appear in raunchy billboard campaigns as rival knicker bosses battle it out for a spot in our Christmas stockings.

Last year, Brits spent £2.4billion on ladies' underwear, with an estimated £550million spent by fellas shopping for pressies for their other halves.

Label Ultimo is bidding to grab the biggest slice of action at the tills by using Girls Aloud beauty Sarah as the face and body of its new range.

And 24-year-old Sarah certainly looks "Something Kinda Oooh" in her sexy new undies, which are guaranteed to catch the eye of boyfriends and huddies in the UK.

by ANDY LEA

"It's incredible to find a lingerie brand that gives you a fantastic cleavage," said Sarah. She faces stiff competition from glamour babe Jordan, real name Katie Price, who has designed her own range of lingerie for Panache – with busty girls like her in mind.

Katie, 28, came up with the idea after being inundated with letters from big-boobed fans desperate to know where to get a good-fitting bra.

"I'm shocked so many women are wearing the wrong-sized bras," said the 32FF babe.

The Katie Price Lingerie Range is now available in D-G bra cup sizes exclusively from George at ASDA.

Shoppers will gorge on the models the latest range.

The former Big sizzling in bras, from the Madam Satin ranges.

A retail expert knows who most but male shoppers will love seeing post of these girls wherever they go.

Sarah wears a plunge bra, £24, and mesh thong with twin rouloux straps, £12, from the Sophisticated Peacock inspired embroidery collection. Available from Debenhams. Call 0845 130 3232 or log on to www.ultimo.co.uk
